

REPORT 2 WOMEN EXECUTED BY CHINESE

Today
The President's Speech
$27 a Day for All
40 Millions Cheap
Mussolini's Program

THE PRESIDENT'S optimistic view of the near future, backed by good facts and figures, should comfort many doubting Americans who think the world had come to a standstill when violent stock market prices had been paid.

Particularly important is the fact that 90 per cent of all the goods of tomorrow the people of the United States, consumers and distributors, should resume their normal purchasing, instead of holding back in a vague, foolish fear of prosperity conditions would immediately become 97 per cent of normal.

IF HENRY FORD'S latest prediction becomes reality, this country will consume all it can produce, and more, barring, perhaps, superfluous food products. And if they can be produced as cheaply in proportion as our automobiles are produced, our farms could under sell the world, as our automobile and moving picture factories do.

Mr. Ford predicts a minimum pay for workers of $27 a day by 1930, the five-day week to be universal, giving the $27 a day man more to enjoy his earnings, automobile, radio, etc.

TO MANY that seems preposterous—almost criminal. But not long ago there was only one man in the United States that could earn a dollar a day the year round. The average from one dollar a day for a man only, to six dollars a day, a mere, for millions of men, would have seemed as "impossible" as the increase that Mr. Ford suggests, from six dollars to twenty-seven.

Not very long ago a President of the United States complained publicly because a good man could not be hired for much less than $100 A YEAR.

There is nothing preposterous or impossible about Mr. Ford's suggestion of $27.00 as minimum pay for 200 days' work in the year, 20 years hence.

Raw materials and manufacturing capacity are unlimited. Why should there be any arbitrary limit to the possibilities of wages, and of human enjoyment?

But do not let future prospects make you discontented with your present condition.

RALPH S. KELLEY of the field division of the national land office in Denver accuses government officials of selling out $40,000,000 worth of public shale oil property for $2,000,000.

The wide "spread" between two millions and forty billions amounts to $38,000,000,000.

The charges, made by an official, will have the attention of the President and Secretary Wilbur. In spite of the fact that it is impossible to fix any actual value for shale rock containing oil. To extract the oil would not pay at present prices, and it may not be worth while for the next hundred years or longer.

Nevertheless, investigation is necessary of the charges that "dummies" are hired to take up small sections of public land at $2.50 an acre, "dummies" turning their purchase money over to the land office.

Opposition to Lowering Standard of Living Voiced in Address to Bankers.

HEARD BY HUGE CROWD

Returns to Washington To Prepare for Two Speeches Set for Monday.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3—President Hoover returned to Washington today from Cleveland, where he addressed the American Bankers' association last night.

The trip to Cleveland completed the first leg of a 3,000-mile swing through the Mid-West, East and South during which the president will speak in three widely scattered states.

He will remain here until Sunday night, when he leaves for Boston for two speeches on Monday, one before the American Legion and the other before the American Federation of Labor. Immediately after the second speech he will go to King's mountain battlefield in South Carolina for the fourth address on Tuesday afternoon.

Answers Gloom Spreaders

The President was on record today as taking sharp issue with both critics of his administration who, he says, dwell only on the "unhappy features" of the current business depression and those who believe American standards of living should be lowered.

Personally replying to opposition campaign declarations for the first time, Mr. Hoover asserted in his address to the Bankers' association last night there was "several folks in the political world who resent the notion that things will ever get better and who wish to enjoy our temporary misery."

To relate to these critics that the government is cooperating with the people to improve conditions and that the United States economic suffering is far less than that in other countries, he said, only "inquires the unkind remark that we should fix our gaze solely upon the unhappy features of the decline."

Adds to Original Speech

Just before going to the auditorium to deliver his speech the President made a last-minute addition to his text in which he took vigorous exception to remarks of a banker delegate who was quoted as saying American living standards should be on a lower plane.

"To that I emphatically disagree," the President asserted amid applause, and added: "Any retreat from our American philosophy of constantly increasing standards of living becomes a retreat into perpetual unemployment and the acceptance of a cesspool of poverty for some large part of our people."

The auditorium, scene of great political gatherings in the past, was filled during the President's 35-minute address. Its seating capacity is estimated at something over 10,000. Additional hundreds heard the speech through amplifiers in an adjoining hall while millions of radio listeners caught it from nationwide broadcasting.

Immediately after the speech, the President boarded his special to make the return trip to Washington.

PREPARE TO PROBE
OIL FRAUD CHARGE

Groundwork Laid Today at Nye-Kelley Conference in Washington.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3—The groundwork for a senatorial investigation of Ralph Kelley's $40,000,000 oil fraud charges was laid today at a conference between Kelley and Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the senate public lands committee.

The investigation of the charges by the department of justice was expected to get under way today.

Kelley, suspended chief of the field division of the general land office at Denver, agreed to lay before Nye details of his charges that the interior department has allowed the big oil companies to illegally obtain title to oil shale fields.

Meanwhile Secretary of the Interior Wilbur announced that "the bid is off" in his department. He said the interior department wants a complete investigation of Kelley's charges and that Richardson and other investigators will be given full cooperation.

Nye, who has asked Kelley to confer with him, announced he would lay the charges before the senate in December if they proved of a substantial nature.

Invents Device for 8-Day
Cruise in Ocean's Depths

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Plans for construction of a diving apparatus capable of descending to a depth of 6,500 feet and cruising about at that level for a period of eight days were described here today by Dr. Rudolph Engemann of Berlin, who said he had been working on the idea since 1923. He said negotiations for construction of the machine are under way with several American firms and he expects to have it ready for demonstration purposes within two or three months.

He described his proposed apparatus as cylindrical, 12 feet high, 50 inches in diameter. It will be equipped with a radio

TWO MORE DAYS REMAIN

Failure to Register Will Cost Right To Cast Vote in November.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Oct. 3—Dr. Frank L. McPhail, a Highland Park physician, was kidnapped last night and held captive until this morning in a vacant house from which he was released by police after he attracted attention by throwing prescription papers out of a window.

A man said by police to have been left to guard the physician—Continued on Page Twelve

The first of three days set aside for permanent registration this year yesterday attracted 3,584 Marion voters, a checkup made today by the board of elections reveals.

This figure is approximately one-third of the number expected during the three days, according to C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk of the board.

Friday and Saturday of next week are the two remaining days allotted voters who wish to register. Failure to register will cost the voter his right to cast a ballot on Nov. 4.

Precinct C in the fifth ward led the list of 42 city precincts in yesterday's registration—with 169 voters entering their names. This was an average of 21 registrations per hour which kept the registrar judges busy from the time the polls opened at 1 p. m. until they closed at 8 p. m.

Four women today began work at the election board office filling the names of the first day's registered voters. The staff will be retained until the compilation and filing are completed.

No general registration is being held in the county precincts but is being held only in cities of 18,000 population or more.

Contrary to expectations, the task of registering one's name is light, since only two minutes are required. The voter merely is asked for his full name, his place of birth and the place where he last voted. He is not asked for his age, since it is taken for granted he is at least 21.

PUBLIC PARADE HERE
ON NOV. 11 PLANNED

American Legion Will Sponsor Armistice Day Observance; Committees Appointed.

A parade, starting at 7:15 p. m., will feature the local Armistice day observance Tuesday, Nov. 11, the American Legion committee in charge announced today through Probate Judge Oscar Gast, chairman, following a meeting yesterday.

Two cups will be awarded by the committee to the best historical and best merchant-industrial floats entered in the parade, Judge Gast said. Either cup may be permanently possessed by a firm or individual winning it three successive years.

Three bands will take part in the parade, according to tentative plans. All former service men in the county will be invited to parade in uniform.

The annual Armistice day 11 o'clock observance will be carried out again this year, although the place of the services has not been decided. The Armistice, which brought to an end the actual fighting in the World war, became effective at 11 a. m. on Nov. 11, 1918.

Homer Waddell and George T. Gera were appointed by Judge Gast as the finance committee while C. H. Howard and Millard Hunt were named on the parade committee.

Further plans are to be drawn up at another meeting of the committee probably next week.

MAN INDICTED
IN BOMB DEATH

No Finding Made Against Widow of Akron Dynamite Victim.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Oct. 3—Summit county grand jury today indicted Marshall W. Cornell, 48, for first degree murder in the death of Clarence R. Barnes, in an auto explosion Sept. 23, and returned a no bill in the case of Mrs. Lulu Esther Barnes, 37, the widow, against whom murder charges had also been placed.

A preliminary police court hearing, asked for by Cornell and Mrs. Barnes when arraigned last week on murder charges, was to have been held today. Attorneys for the pair heard the news of the grand jury's action while waiting to go before Police Judge Owen M. Hotterlich.

They immediately left the court, stating that as far as they were concerned the action was dropped.

William H. Knowlton, counsel for Cornell said he would ask a speedy trial of the case and that he would ask the court to fix bond when Cornell is arraigned in common pleas court.

Barnes was hurled 40 feet through the roof of Cornell's auto in an explosion that occurred while he was driving down Magnolia road. He died on a hospital operating table. Detective Chief Ed McConnell claims the blast was caused by placing two sticks of dynamite under the gasoline tank and attaching them to a wire leading to the machine's tail light.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 3—Charles J. Mayers of Cleveland today was appointed receiver for the Cleveland, Southwestern Railway & Light Co., operator of a traction line in the northern and central districts of Ohio, by Judge Samuel H. West in federal district court here.

The appointment of the receiver of the company followed the filing of a bill of complaint against the railway concern by M. B. Reeve of Brooklyn, N. Y., who claims to be a creditor of the company.

The petition also alleges that there are more than 60 other creditors of the company who hold coupons for interest in similar bonds amounting to approximately $60,000.

The traction line of the railway company operates in seven Ohio counties, namely: Cuyahoga, Ashland, Lorain, Crawford, Richland, Medina and Wayne.

The principal division of the line operates from Cleveland to Wooster, Medina, Ashland, Mansfield, Bucyrus, Crestline and Gallon, in addition to numerous smaller towns and villages.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Oct. 4

WITH the most of the planets in adverse positions on this day, by lunar aspect, supported by a sinister solar figure, it will be difficult to make much progress and avoid the shoals unless by sheer shrewdness, resolution and dogged application. The latter will be sustained by a friendly Saturn, the only sidereal help to be looked for. There is a menace of fraud, duplicity and furtive attack, as well as a threat of open enmity. With complete awareness, discretion and following the advice of elderly persons difficulties may be bridged over.

Those whose birthday it is may expect to be confronted by a year of difficult and hazardous situations which may only be circumvented by hard work, strict attention to business and the exercise of a mind alert to deception, fraud and enmity. Subtle and underhand methods lie in wait, but wisdom and the friendly advice of elders may assist over the shoals. Safeguard the funds. A child born on this day should be industrious and shrewd, with secret and inner leadings to apprise it of danger spots, to which it may be subject through treachery and malice.

INDIVIDUALITY—so easy to recognize... so hard to attain... bound to be admired... sure to be copied... but beyond imitation.

ONE will always stand out!

IT IS the "just right" combination that makes for style in the gown—and good taste in a cigarette.

Nothing can take the place of the right use of the right tobaccos. Chesterfield's long-tested methods of mellowing and blending the choicest cigarette tobaccos have no counterpart. Thus Chesterfield stands out for—

MILDNESS—the entirely natural mildness of tobaccos that are without harshness or bitterness.

BETTER TASTE—such as only a cigarette of wholesome purity and better tobaccos can have.

Services for Youth—Funeral services for Robert Harold French, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. French of 1201 East Center street, were held today at 2 p. m. at the home, Dr. C. F. Turley, pastor of Epworth M. E. church, officiated. Burial was made in Marion cemetery.

Ambulance Drives—The W. C. Boyd invalid car made the following drives yesterday: Mrs. H. D. Wakely from 638 East Church street to the home of her mother at 702 Herman street, yesterday afternoon; Mrs. Bushford Howser and infant daughter from City hospital to the home east of Marion yesterday afternoon.

New Member—A member was enrolled by Eric Carmen's Lodge No. 1008 at a meeting last night in Central Labor Hall. A smoker followed a business meeting.

Traffic Charge—Charged with driving through a red traffic light signal at Leader and Center street last night, J. H. Gaudert, 49, of 615 Mary street was arrested by city police. He was released on $5 bail to appear in municipal court to answer the charge.

SILVER STREET NOW OPEN TO TRAFFIC

Application of Asphalt on Prospect To Begin Next Week.

Contractors today were putting finishing touches on Silver street between the Hocking Valley railroad tracks and the west corporation line, following the reopening of the street yesterday.

Lawns abutting on the street, between the sidewalk and the curb-line, are being graded and the curbs as a part of the resurfacing improvement. The work will be finished in a week.

Silver street has been resurfaced with asphalt. Old street car tracks once a part of the city street car service have been removed and replaced with concrete for a base.

Application of asphalt on North Prospect street, which will be resurfaced from Mark street to the Erie railroad tracks, will begin by the middle of next week. A mixing plant of H. P. Streicher & Co. of Toledo is now undergoing repairs, which will not be completed until that time.

Immediately after the completion of Prospect street, the contracting firm will move to South Main street and begin resurfacing that street between Columbia street and George street.

Workmen of the city service department today were applying concrete on sections of North Main street to patch depressions in that street. Work began at Fairground street and progressed southward.

One of the dandy little phrases that reporters need is, "he said."

To Demonstrate Fire Fighting Equipment

Local fire department officials today were expecting the demonstration of a modern piece of fire-fighting apparatus here, a ladder truck only 26 feet long which is capable of hoisting a fireman 100 feet into the air.

It is probable that the equipment will be demonstrated against tall buildings of the city. There is little possibility of the purchase of such equipment at the present, officials say.

The road is to be paved with waterbound macadam at an estimated cost of $24,161.80. It is to be started by Oct. 25 and finished by Nov. 15.

Commissioners yesterday viewed the proposed vacation of the Howard road in Big Island township and referred the proposition to County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens for his investigation.

Flashes of Life

GLAMIS, Scotland—The thirteenth position of the village registration that has been avoided for the baby princess, Margaret Rose of York. The duke waited until another baby had been registered before he went to the village post office and recorded the arrival of Margaret, who is fourteenth on the list.

WASHINGTON—Losses on horse races are deductible from income, but poor election wagers are not, it seems. Such is the case anyhow with Jettette Shouse. He was permitted to deduct $12,458 in net losses on track wagers in 1923, 1924, and 1925. Deduction of $1,700 for a bet lost on the national election result in Maryland in 1924 was disapproved.

NEW YORK—Cornelius McCarthy, rum runner, is so frank the police won't believe him. He walked into a hospital with a bullet wound in one shoulder. He said he was running rum on Long Island and was shot by hijackers. And the wound did not hurt at all. He escaped the hijackers and delivered the stuff. "Where?" He wouldn't tell. So the police let him go.

SEATTLE—Perhaps next summer Don Moe, golf star, will yell fore once when his ball is slicing and twice when it is hooking. Anyhow he is to learn what one and two blasts of a steamship's whistle mean to a craft ahead. He has become a cadet officer of the steamship President Cleveland.

MENLO PARK, N. J.—Hope that aviators will be enabled to see through fog is entertained by Thomas E. Edison. Assen Jordanoff, airplane designer, flew from Long Island to the wizard's laboratory for a chat about problems. Informed of difficulties with fog, Edison said: "We have converted sound into light and light into sound. There is no reason for not being able to solve the artificial eye."

McFarland Asks Public Help In Checking Fires

HELP prevent fires! That was the idea of Fire Chief T. J. McFarland today as the local department prepared to cooperate in the observance of annual Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 5-11.

More than 10,000 persons lose their lives annually because of fires, and the annual fire loss reaches nearly $500,000,000, according to Chief McFarland. Of all fires, 80 per cent are caused by carelessness and poor building construction, he said.

A few suggestions on how Marionites can help reduce the heavy fire toll were given by Chief McFarland today:

When burning light material in furnaces and stoves, don't leave the damper wide open. Blazing paper and cardboard swept up the chimney by strong drafts cause a majority of shingle roof fires.

Clear out all rubbish from premises and clean chimneys, flues and pipes.

Have an experienced electrician do your wiring. It's cheaper in the long run. Carefully dispose of matches and tobacco. They cause the largest number of fires.

Use soapbuds instead of matches to locate gas leaks. Use metal cans for ashes.

Shield walls and ceilings from stoves, heaters and pipes and screen open fireplaces. Use fire resistive materials when building or repairing around chimneys or other places likely to cause fires.

There are only 250 lots at Vermillion Lagoon. Insure your summer by selecting a lot now. "Every Lot a Waterfront."—Adv.

A daughter was born yesterday afternoon at the Frederick C. Smith clinic to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bond of 334 Girard avenue. Mrs. Bond was formerly Miss Eva Kenyon, daughter of Mrs. C. E. Kenyon of 334 Girard avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks of 418 Girard avenue have received word of the birth of a son to their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wright of Celina, last night. Trouble Develops

When Gene Tunney got married to the rich and blue-blooded Polly Lauder in 1928 he was all set to enjoy himself for the rest of his life. Then on the horizon appeared a cloud in the shape of Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, who decided it was her time to cash in. She decided that $500,000 was com-

Even the great Dempsey was not free from hands of pretty ladies whose hearts had a habit of cracking up at a mere glance from masculine eyes. Lovely Bee Palmer's husband sued the Manassa Mauler for $250,000, declaring Dempsey had turned Bee's head. Dempsey said no and Bee and husband made up.

Other Clashes

Of course the troubles of the ring boys are not all caused by glittering women with shattered hearts. They have plenty of troubles that are legal. Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, and Jack Kearns, former fight pilot of Jack Dempsey, are at present engaged in bouts which have left them pretty groggy.

The trouble between the famous pilot and his wife began five years ago, and Kearns has been paying his wife $500 a month ever since. Mickey's wife sued him for separate maintenance and custody of their five-year-old son, while Mickey claims she had spent more than $119,000 in less than a year. The boys, however successful they may appear to be in the ring game, develop into complete failures when they play the game of "hearts."

PROSPECTOR IN FILM

By International News Service
YREKA, Cal.—Fame at last has come to Andy Thrash, 34, pioneer Siskiyou prospector. A motion picture company signed him as the leading character for numerous "shots" to be made at Scott Bar. Thrash has prospected in the hills near here for nearly three-quarters of a century.

NOTHING NEW IN FARMING

By International News Service
SAN JOSE, Cal.—"There's practically nothing new in agriculture," Sam H. "The present problem is not to find new science on the subject, but to bring what is already known into the limelight."

Crocodile Jewel Box—Inside a crocodile, 15 feet long, shot by K. The huge reptile had also swallowed a pair of silver earrings, a bead of a pattern which had been out of fashion for 150 years, a jam jar and the neck of a bottle.

Hot Shots at Business Men.

Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age,
delivered some telling shots at the business men
of the country, Wednesday, holding them responsible for the putting of the government into business to the extent to which it already has been infected and with being steadily employed
it putting it still farther into the business affairs of the country at the expense of the long-
suffering public.

Addressing the convention of the National Association of Casualty and Surety Underwriters and the National Association of Casualty and Surety Agents at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, the Railway Age editor
charged that "while practically all business men
profess to be opposed to government in business, the business men of the United States
themselves are principally responsible for the
constant increases of government in business
in this country and for the increase in taxes
that result," that "the only thing for which
our business men are more nearly unanimous
than for less government in business, is for more government in business."

It must not be taken that Editor Dunn holds
that any business man is seeking the entrance of the government into his business. What he wants is government in the other fellow's.
There is the exception, of course, of the business man who seeks to secure the entrance of the government into his business to lighten the burden of the expense of running it.

Charging that the influence of the large lumber manufacturers of Washington and Oregon
put those states into the workmen's compensation insurance business; that the influence of the Ohio Association of Manufacturers accomplished the same end in this state, and that the coal mine operators put West Virginia into
it, Editor Dunn asked:

"While most business men profess to be opposed to socialist policies in general, can you
recall any case in which the business men
of any class or community opposed any particular socialist policy which they believed
would increase their own profits? Did the business men of Los Angeles oppose the federal government taxing the entire nation to carry out the Boulder Dam project especially for the benefit of Los Angeles?"

As is generally known, this country for many years had little governmental influence in
business; far less than almost any other nation.
The country prospered and became wealthy beyond almost all others in the world. Then business men evolved the idea of having the
state or federal government lighten their burdens by placing them on the state or the country as a whole, as the case might be. It was a great scheme for them, but the cost thereof
soon became an awful burden, and today the
tax burden is one of the most serious problems facing the country. The tax burden of the country increased from $7,250,000,000 in 1923
to $9,200,000,000 in 1928. Going back ten years
before the former period, back to the pre-war
year of 1913, the country's per capita tax bill was $22.73, or 6.4 per cent. of the national income. In 1927 it was $76.50, or twelve per cent. of the national income, while the increase in farm taxes from 1920 to 1927 was sixty-six per cent.

Summed up, the people of the United States
are the victims of their own selfishness, for
we are not inclined to agree with Editor Dunn
in holding business men responsible for all the taxation from which the country suffers. People are always ready to indorse any scheme
which works special advantage to them at the cost of the government, the state, or the municipality, and so long as the few are permitted
to advance their own interests at the expense
of the many, government will go deeper and
deeper into business with a consequent increase
of the tax burden.

The President's Address.

President Hoover's address, delivered Thursday night to the members of the American Bankers' association assembled in Cleveland
for their fifty-sixth annual convention, naturally dwelt largely on the part the banking interests of the country have played in carrying the credit system of the nation safely through
the period of depression of which the causes
and effects alike have been worldwide.

While conceding that the Wall Street crash,
although he did not so refer to it, was a severe
shock to the country, the President maintained
that price collapses in many and widely-distributed parts of the world, the United States
included, following overproduction of important
raw materials had a far greater effect in causing our depression. "The prosperity of Brazil
and Colombia has been temporarily affected
from the situation in coffee; Chile, Peru, Mexico and Australia from the fall in silver, zinc and copper. The buying power of India and China, dependent upon the price of silver, has been affected. Australia, Canada and the Argentine have been affected by the situation in wheat; Cuba and Java have been depressed by the condition of the sugar industry; East India
generally has suffered from the fall in rubber."

All these causes, the President held, have
not only led to political unrest in some lands,
but also slowed down the demand for manufactured goods alike from the United States
and Europe with inevitable contributions to unemployment. But as the most of these commodities are below the level at which sufficient production can be maintained for the world's normal needs, there must be recovery.

But while the depression, like its causes, has been worldwide, the President held there is no occasion for the United States to wait for the recovery of the remainder of the world. "This country is able to accomplish a large degree
of recovery independent of the outside world.
This country emerged from a far more serious
situation in 1922, when practically all the Old world was financially prostrate, and it is far better organized today to make recovery than it was then. At present our national production
is in excess of one-third of the entire commercial world, and we normally consume, on the average, ninety per cent. of the commodities
we produce. Were we at normal consumption and held our present reduced basis of foreign
exports, business would be ninety-nine per cent.
of what it is normally."

President Hoover is not in sympathy with
the economic fatalists who believe that periods
of depression such as we have been experiencing are "inevitable and bound to be recurrent." He points out that much has already been done to check their violence and mitigate their distress with the result that the
periods between them are longer and the time of their duration less. The national, state and municipal governments have expedited the construction of public works as have also public utilities. Leading industrial and business concerns have sustained wages and distributed
employment and expedited heavy construction,
and the federal reserve system and the banking
interests have been exceedingly helpful, but there is opportunity for the bankers to do still more. They have become the business advisers of the public. It is within their power, in their dealings with the public, to allay the psychological condition which is the greatest barrier
to economic recovery—they can allay the fear
which has the people of the country in its grasp. It is very largely in the power of the bankers of the land to dissipate this psychological condition which exists. Without faith
on their part and without their good offices,
the early return of full prosperity can not be accomplished. "They can dispel the pessimism
which slackens the consumption of goods and discourages enterprise on the part of the great element of the people whose incomes have not been affected by depression."

"I started with the promise that this question of stability was much more than a problem in academic economics," said the President in summing up. "It is a great human problem, for it involves the happiness of millions of homes. A continued unity of effort, in our present situation and in establishing safeguards
for the future, is the need of today. No one can contribute more than our banking community."

Such, in outline, was the address of President Hoover to the bankers. While largely directed to them, it brings out much that may be taken home by all lines of business and industry, for all may be instrumental in laying low the obstruction raised by fear in the way of return
to normal conditions.

dian, on whose "murder" farm at Wineville,

From Cartersville, Georgia, comes the story
of another lynching. The year is but three-

reason not yet disclosed for this return to savagery.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, says that the dry Middle West, defying the wet cities of the East, will dominate the nation and stand by prohibition in 1932. The Middle West may be dry, as Arthur claims, but there certainly are some mighty extensive oases in it here and
there, and it has been said that even "Bleeding Kansas" is somewhat like the country as a whole in the respect that it is only theoretically dry.

THE SORE SPOTS.

Editorial Opinion.

A POLITICAL FIGHTER OF RENOWN.

The first Earl of Birkenhead, whose death
after a long illness follows within a few weeks
that of the Duke of Northumberland, was only fifty-eight years old; but few men in English political life have had a more stirring and varied career. It may be doubted if in intellectual ability he was equal to the duke, who,
though he held no political office, was long a power in the Conservative party by reason of his courage and his firm adherence to principle. The earl, once Frederick Edwin Smith, rose from humble beginnings. As Browning said of himself, he was "a fighter." Though perhaps he did not always choose his weapons
with discrimination. Presumably a staunch opponent of fish home rule, he was nevertheless
one of the chief negotiators of the treaty which established the Free State. In spite of the vehemence which was one of his marked characteristics, he was incapable of the consistency
that the Duke of Northumberland so brilliantly exemplified.

Lord Birkenhead had one of the finest legal
minds in England, and he had the barrister's
capacity of doing his best for whatever public
cause happened to be at the moment his client.
He was a skillful prosecutor, as he showed in the case of Sir Roger Casement, and he was largely instrumental in carrying through a great reform in English legal procedure. He was a prominent member of the wartime
cabinet, and was in the secretary of state for India under Mr. Balfour. His services to his party in general were conspicuous, though, like Mr. Winston Churchill, his lack of judgment often made him a sort of enfant
terrible. Nevertheless, his fighting qualities
make his death a loss to his political associates.
He would have been an asset to the Conservatives as a campaigner had he survived
until another general election. — Philadelphia

BRUENING'S LAST STAND.

The dramatic challenge of Chancellor Bruen-
ing to the German reichstag marks a final showdown for republicanism. In the face of an almost hopeless party alignment, the chancellor and President von Hindenburg offer a vigorous program of economy and financial reform. If the reichstag rejects it, then dictatorship under the extraordinary powers of Article 48 of the constitution is to follow.
Hitler's answer is already given. Such a dictatorship, he says, is a desertion of parliamentary government, and would justify a forcible attempt of the Fascists to overthrow the government and set up their own version of what a dictatorship should be. "This, from the leader
of the second largest political party of the reich."

Already the impact of the German crisis is apparent in international circles. Aristide Briand has said at Geneva that the new tone
of the German electorate is proof enough why France will not consent to disarmament until her security is made certain. And for once France will find warm support for her position
among other nations, for the world is not yet ready for a militant Germany seeking the an-nullment of the Versailles treaty by any possible means—the frankly spoken aim of German fascism.

It is just possible that the Bruening government can avert a parliamentary crisis and a Fascist coup d'état until economic conditions
improve, and with them the tenor of German sentiment. For the sake of peace of Europe,
and the progressive recovery of the world from
the chaos of 1914-1918, it is hoped that this final stroke of moderate statesmanship in Berlin will achieve its purpose. — Cincinnati Enquirer

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.
Washington, Oct. 3.—Though the capitol is one of the most forsaken spots in Washington
at the present—its corridors adjourned and senators and representatives back home in the midst of campaigns—there are, nevertheless,
busy days in the office of the "colonel."
The "colonel" is that tall, portly, brunet—Ed
Haley—acting assistant doorkeeper of the United States senate, sometimes referred to as secretary of the Democratic minority, but in reality the mental guard of his party in the senate.

Just now the "colonel" is engaged in the task
of supplying ammunition for use in those states
where Democrats are endeavoring to retain
or win seats in the senate.

He thumbs his way through the monotonous
pages of the Congressional Record, jotting
down how this senator voted on a particular piece of legislation, what that senator said on the floor about the tariff or any other subject
likely to be brought up in the various campaigns.

These, he makes available to those Democrats who have need of such information.

The "colonel" is at the beck and call of his chiefs the year round. And for all sorts of missions. The work he is now doing is a very small part of Haley's regular duties.

It is when the senate is in session that he is seen at his best. Then he is in reality the mental guard for his party.

He must know where every Democrat is and
be able to report his whereabouts to Senator
Joe Robinson, the minority floor leader.

Take, for example, those hectic days of the last season when the Democrats, aided by the insurgents, were doing their utmost to wreck
the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill. It was of the greatest importance that all of the Democratic senators be on hand when a vote was called.

Senator Robinson used the "colonel" at all hours of the day. His services were indispensable. He had to know where a Democratic senator was, whether or not that senator had told him of his whereabouts.

And often it was a question of how fast his heels flew as to whether his party won a victory
or suffered a defeat.

The important job of looking after pairs to see that no Democratic senator loses his vote,
rests on his shoulders.

He must send out notices of party conferences and caucuses, and attend to the details. He is the only outsider admitted to these private Democratic sessions.

Minutes of such meetings must be kept by
him.

The "colonel" has literally grown up on the floor of the senate. He started as a page,
appointed by Senator John W. Daniels, of Virginia.

His job is for all time. His rank—officially —fluctuates with the fortunes of his party. If the Democrats get control of the senate, he will step up from acting assistant doorkeeper
to assistant doorkeeper, the job now held by his friend Carl Loeffler, the mental guard of G. O. P.

Noted War Horses.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Ohio generals in the civil war rode horses
which became, some of them, as famous almost as their noted riders. There was "Rhiendolph," coal black stallion that Sheridan rode to Winchester, preserved in T. Buchanan Read's great poem of the civil war.

Custer, mounted, was a striking figure. He was hard to please in mounts and in his service
used six horses, his favorite being "Dandy."
He also was fond of "Don Juan." The latter was captured in North Carolina, and was the horse that ran away with the general at the grand review in Washington. "Dandy" was killed with Custer and all his command by the Sons of 1876.

Grant had two noted horses, "Lexington" and "Cincinnati." Like Sherman, Grant was not a showy rider. Sherman usually rode with his head bent forward as in thought. Sherman
had a well-proportioned bay, also called "Lexington," which he rode on his principal campaigns. This horse is faithfully portrayed in the equestrian statue of Sherman that stands
in the Sherman plaza, adjoining the White House.

McPherson had a noted horse, coal black and
of some mettle, which was wounded when his owner was killed, but recovered and was sent to Clyde after the war.

General Steedman had a horse called "Zolli-coffer," because he had been captured from that general. He was killed beneath General Steedman at Chickamauga at the time when
the general was proving himself one of the heroes of that battle.

A noted war horse was "Old Baldy," ridden
by General Pleasanton at Gettysburg, Antietam
and Chancellorsville. One of the noted horses
of the war was "Baldy," that carried General Mendenhall through Gettysburg. He was shot many times, but survived his master ten years. He appeared riderless in the grand review at Washington.

Chemistry and Fuel.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.
The trend of civilization in the third decade
of this century points to transportation as the coming industry of the future, transcending in importance every other form of human occupation. The astonishing growth of the automotive industry, man's increasing preoccupation
with flight, the felt need in all departments of human endeavor for greater mobility
and higher efficiency, all point in the same direction. Mechanics, physics and chemistry
are being intensively developed to keep pace
with the rapidly growing need of individual
and groups, of corporations and of nations.
Next after food production in importance comes the pressing demands of transportation needs.
Physics is actively employed in determining
the properties and constitution of the materials employed in vehicles of transport. Mechanics is constantly at work in the development of new types of framework, new combinations of mechanisms. Chemistry is working overtime in developing new types of fuel needed for all forms of vehicular traffic—locomotives, ships,
motor cars, airplanes and dirigibles. Energy power, speed—these constitute primary and
vital needs of man as individual, as merchant,
as agent of industry and instrument of commerce.

In his "The Future of Chemistry" Jones goes
so far as to say: "It would very likely be possible to show that lack of mechanical transport, as well as disease, lay at the root of the troubles of all earlier civilization, as without it they were doomed to stagnation. Since we may expect still greater improvements in transport we may assume progressively higher integration, as transport is the keystone of
social life and culture; food is that of population."

If this point of view, startling as it seems
at first sight, be accepted, it is impossible to avoid the

OHIO PEN CHAPLAIN IS KIWANIS SPEAKER

Says Conditions in Penal Institutions Far from Satisfactory.

Claiming imprisonment, torture and death are not deterrents to crime, Kenneth E. Wall, chaplain at Ohio's largest penal institution, Ohio state penitentiary, yesterday gave Marion Kiwanians an insight to conditions in that institution, and advanced his theories on crime and its handling.

Crime, which costs this country $7,000,000 a year, is a result of conditions set up by society, Wall declared.

Present handling of crime is unfair and impractical, in the opinion of Wall. Prison sentences are out of proportion, prison conditions are by no means satisfactory, he believes.

The chaplain disparaged the often-advanced theory that prohibition is responsible for a greater share of crime today. "Statistics show that three and a half percent of prison inmates are there because of some form of violation of the prohibition laws," he said.

A long prison sentence under existing conditions is not a satisfactory method of handling persons who have committed a criminal act. A person who commits a criminal act is not necessarily a criminal, Wall said.

What is needed today to better crime conditions is better buildings and large farms where prisoners may keep busy at work and the withdrawal of sentencing power from judges, Wall said. He favors a system whereby courts determine guilt of prisoners, and a board of persons qualified to determine the mental attitude of the convicted person fixes the sentence.

STOP PARADE IN CLEVELAND

Police Break Up Demonstration Headed by Group of Communists.

By The Associated Press. CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 3.—Charges of mounted policemen and swinging nightsticks broke up an impromptu parade of Communists and unemployed near the public hall where President Hoover was addressing the American Bankers' association convention last night.

When the paraders, variously estimated at between 600 and 800 attempted to turn toward the public hall, motorcycle officers laid down a smoke screen and mounted police charged, driving the marchers off the street.

Several were knocked down, a detective was beaten by a parader, one reporter received cuts and bruises that necessitated hospital treatment. Another reporter was inadvertently struck with a night stick wielded by a policeman, and spectators said scores were clubbed by police.

Store Windows Smashed. Three store windows were smashed during the melee and four men were arrested for investigation.

The parade had formed in the public square, a few blocks away from the scene of the disorder, after Tom Johnson, a Communist orator, and others exhorted the throng to march to the public hall.

and protest against unemployment. Acting Chief of Police George J. Matowitz instructed Captain John Savage, in charge of the escorting mounted police, to permit the parade so long as there was no violence.

The marchers, singing the "Internationale" and other songs, were forced by a line of police which surrounded the hall to turn down St. Clair avenue. After they had marched two blocks beyond the hall, many of them tried to turn back and the smoke screen was laid down, leading some, including firemen on traffic duty, to believe tear bombs had been hurled.

Disarmed by Police. Soon there were cries of "fight" and the police charged. Some of the marchers, Communist sympathizers, were attached in an effort to fight back, but were disarmed, police said.

The disorder was short lived and those listening to Mr. Hoover were unaware of the trouble.

Capt. Savage insisted there was no police violence and that he halted the parade because it became a traffic menace.

FRANCE TO CHECK IMPORTS OF WHEAT

To Curb Flow of Russian Grain into Country; Exports Must Balance.

By United Press. PARIS, Oct. 3.—The French government took energetic action today to curb a flood of Russian wheat and other products into France.

The cabinet decided to restrict the products with import licenses requiring a reciprocal exchange between France and Russia.

The application of the law will be explained at public meetings to be held tonight by the ministries of agriculture and commerce, but it is understood that Russian imports will be limited to an equal amount of French products exported to Russia.

Large quantities of Soviet wheat enroute to French ports are expected to be halted by the government's action.

"Russia had two months of benefit from unloading her grain by surprise before other nations could react," an official of the government said. "It is undeniable that the sudden fall in the world price of wheat, sugar, wool, and other products was due to Russia's mass exports."

chance over to the big oil companies.

MUSOLINI says he will do anything to avoid war, and part of his wise plan for avoiding war, is to keep ready for it. He expects to see the prosperity of the whole world restored within three years, and casually says, "Speculators deserve death."

In Russia they do more than say it. They take the speculators out in two and dozens and shoot them if they speculate in a way that Russia considers injurious.

If we applied this rule in the United States, there would not be enough shooters. However, even this country, tolerating anything done in the name of dollars and profit, might take action with regard to the speculators who are deliberately conspiring to destroy public confidence in methods well understood in Wall street.

DEAN HANFORD of Harvard refused a postponement of yesterday's examination of students requested by Jewish students, forbidden by religious scruples to do any manual work, even writing, on the religious holiday of Yom Kippur. He agreed, however, that Jewish students might dictate answers to questions and that professors would be provided for the purpose.

Harvard, out of respect for Christianity, has no examination on Sunday. In the eyes of this government all religions are entitled to respect. The dean might well have found a day other than Yom Kippur for the examinations, if only for the practical reason that Jews, including Julius Rosenberg, have been among the most generous contributors to the funds of Harvard college. Their contributions have always been accepted.

No more cruel suggestion could be made; as well drag a weary man from his bed, or give red-hot coals to a child.

Law Enforcing Board Prepares for Session

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The offices of President Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement took on a definite air of activity today as final material was assembled for a meeting of the commission next Wednesday—the first gathering since June.

Faced as the commission is with the possibility of being asked to make a definite statement on the prohibition problem, all members but Henry W. Anderson, Virginia lawyer, have indicated they would be present when the meeting convened. Anderson is now abroad.

Highways To Grid Games Have Only Two Detours

Marion football fans who plan to attend games in this vicinity Saturday afternoon will find few detours on their routes if they follow highways suggested by Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, Marion Auto club secretary.

Probably the most accessible of games in this vicinity is that between Ohio Wesleyan and Heidelberg at Delaware, which may be reached by following route 23 south to the neighboring college town, Ohio State fans who plan to attend the Indiana game at the Ohio stadium Saturday may also follow route 23 to Columbus. St. Xavier of Cincinnati will play Denison at Granville and the best road to follow is route 23 to Delaware and route 47 from Delaware through Sunbury to Granville.

SENATOR HITS AT RAIL HEAD

Brookhart Sees Menace to Government Program in Sargent Speech.

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Taking issue with Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago Northwestern Railway company, that the government was drifting toward confiscation of inland waterways and public roads, Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, today said this statement was tantamount to a declaration of war by the railroads on the nation's waterway improvement plans.

Sargent asserted before the American Bankers' association in Cleveland yesterday that the government's policy of paying the expense of constructing waterways to be used in competition with railroads out of taxpayers' money was contrary to the constitution.

New Plans Menaced. "The people of the west were happy in the thought that the government had adopted a general policy of improving the inland waterways," Brookhart said. "Now the whole policy is threatened by an attack of the railroads."

"This attack," he continued, "is not idle vaporings, but the mature thought of the shrewdest lawyers in the country. It means that every legal artifice will be used to stop the improvement of our rivers in competition with the railroads."

"The government subsidizes the railroads," he said, "by giving them 158,000,000 acres of land for construction and later again subsidizing them when private operation broke down under the world war strain. The railroads padded their expenses, he asserted, to make government operation appear unsuccessful."

Railroads, he said, "paid only $7 tax on $100 gross income" while farmers in Iowa and other states paid $27 on the hundred, adding that Sargent's argument of the tax burden on railroads was insubstantial.

DEATH ENDS BOUT

Iowa Pugilist Succumbs After Fifth Round; Opponent Held.

By The Associated Press. CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Oct. 3.—Battling Nelson of Waterloo, Ia., fighting the semi-windup of the Mandell-Myers match last night, died with his gloves on.

He collapsed at the end of the fifth round and a towel was tossed in the ring. None in the crowd knew it, but Nelson was dying. His opponent, Kid Leonard of East Moline, Ill., was ordered held for the inquest today. He is 17 years old and was fighting his 19th professional bout. Nelson, whose full name was Hildreth C. Nelson, was 27 years, married and the father of four children.

Three physicians were at the ring and sought unsuccessfully to revive Nelson. Their unofficial expressions were that death was accidental, being due either to paralysis of the heart or over-exertion, rather than as the result of a blow.

Hoover Tells Bankers To Maintain Standard

By International News Service. CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—Charged by no less a personage than President Herbert Hoover himself with the task of maintaining and increasing wherever possible the American standards of living, delegates to the 56th annual convention of the American Bankers' association today began their homeward journeys.

Business activities of the associations were concluded yesterday noon. President Hoover addressed the final session of the convention last night.

Grand Jury To Probe Brutal Murder of Man

By United Press. DENNISON, O., Oct. 3.—County grand jury investigation of the "ears" murder of an unidentified man whose mutilated body was found in a roadside ditch will be started next Wednesday, County Prosecutor J. F. Kuhns said today.

No charges have been placed in connection with the killing although Frank Marafioti, owner of the coupe in which the slain man's ears were found, is still in custody.

Marafioti has insisted throughout hours of grilling that he knows nothing of the murder or the identity of the victim.

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—An investigation of the charges brought against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, by four ministers of the denomination appeared certain today following a conference last night between Cannon and Bishop W. N. Ainsworth.

Reliable authority had it that Bishop Ainsworth, with whom the charges were filed, had decided to appoint a committee of 12 ministers to conduct an inquiry.

was arrested. He gave his name as Frank Sabino. Police reported that when Dr. McPhail's father, Dr. Malcolm McPhail, went to arrange for payment of ransom at 6 a. m. today, he was abducted, but was released later after being driven to the neighborhood in which the son had been held.

The kidnapping recalled the numerous abductions for ransom in Detroit and its suburbs during recent years. It was the first crime of this nature reported for nearly a year, however.

Dr. McPhail was abducted while a special grand jury was hearing the testimony of some of the leaders of the old kidnapping rings, who turned state's evidence after being convicted.

The younger McPhail said he was forced into an automobile by three men after answering a lewd professional call and was taken to the house, which is in the edge of the city, where he was forced to write a note asking for $1,000 ransom. Two of the men went out with the note, leaving the other as a guard.

Dr. McPhail did not know until he was rescued that his guard was unarmed, having given his pistol to one of his companions.

After a sleepless night, Dr. McPhail said he attracted attention of children outside while his guard's back was turned. Parents of the children notified police.

CHILDREN take sick more often and easier than grown-ups. They give little if any warning and await no one's convenience. Winter or Summer, housecleaning or vacation time, wash day or party day, "Junior" or "Sis" or "Baby" is very liable to upset all calculations with something that looks serious.

Of course, the sensible thing is to phone Dr. _____ but the doctor is out and will be for several hours on other calls. An already harassed mother is driven almost to distraction. Then, like a flash, she remembers her own mother's advice—"When you can't reach your Doctor, call Ure Druggist." That takes care of the emergency till the doctor comes, and afterward, too.

As an independent druggist, owning and managing his own store, Ure Druggist is intensely interested in the community's welfare. He marks the coming

The Dancing Silhouette

BY NATALIE SUMNER LINCOLN

Copyright, D. Appleton & Co.

On Monday night, Thorne rose briskly; he had learned much in their brief interview. "I am extremely obliged to you, Mr. Ross," he paused at the door. "Mrs. Lawrence was found dead last night in her room at Mrs. George Sims' boarding house in Georgetown."

Thorne next visited Inspector Mitchell's office, to find that busy official on the point of leaving. "Some news?" he asked eagerly. "Mrs. Lawrence's identity," responded Thorne tersely. "She was the divorced wife of Dr. Kane."

The inspector looked at him in dumbfounded silence for a moment. "So that's it!" he exploded. "But—your connection with Kane's murder—I can't quite get her in the picture."

Thorne smiled. "Nor can I," he admitted softly, "in that connection. Why not wire Boston and get a line on her career as Mrs. Kane and as the eccentric Mrs. Lawrence. By the way," checking himself at the door as Mitchell reached for his telephone receiver, "what reports have you had from Jackson and the other operatives stationed around Oakland?"

Reaching for a paper Mitchell tossed it to him. "Read for yourself."

Thorne skimmed through the several reports, conning them over to himself. No happenings were out of the ordinary. Each report giving bare facts; that of the operative on duty early Thursday evening mentioned no one leaving Oakland. Was his theory wrong, then, as to Mrs. Lawrence's mysterious visitor with the voice "soft and low," admitted by the landlady's daughter?

"Hey! Wait a minute!" Mitchell gained Thorne's side as he ran down the steps of the municipal building. "Have you had any results from this?" holding up an advertisement with its glaring display type. "Ten thousand dollars is a big sum to pay for news of Jack Winslow's hiding place."

"Large rewards being results generally," retorted Thorne. "Winslow is most anxious for news of the boy."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

By JUD M. LEWIS

FRIDAY. I am glad there is not to be any more school till day after Sunday. Except Sunday school, Jubilee looked glad too when I told him about it. But you can't tell much about a dog. I tried him out by telling him I was going to take him out in the alley after breakfast and shoot him, and he looked in my face and skinned his teeth and wagged his tail. Either he didn't have enough sense to know what I was talking about, or he had enough to know that I wouldn't do it. I would have hated to be of been Goop's brother, locked up in a garage all night; and these nights are chillish too.

When I had let Jubilee down and was out milking the cows and the bunch came, I asked Goop what happened and he said a plenty happened and it all happened to his brother. I asked him if his father licked him, and he said his mother was afraid his father couldn't do it, so she done it, and she done it right. Goop's brother is his mother's pet, so that surprised us all. When a fella's mother goes back on him he ought to know good and well that he is wrong.

When I had fed my face and we were going out to the pasture, we got the cows started good and then we went down to the stink factory to see if any cows or horses had died lately and they hadn't. They are only working on half time, but the manager told us he thought everything would be all right soon. He said he has got a scientist making experiments and he thinks they will soon learn to make fertilizer out of old automobiles and chewing gum and rubbers and things out of the tires, and then business will pick up again. Growth ups can certainly do some mighty smart things. That ought to make dead horses and cows feel cheap. There was a board across the creek and we played follow the leader, and Feeble was right behind me doing everything I done, and I ran out on the board and jumped up and down three times and then ran to do something else, but when I had jumped it the board had went down to the water and got wet, and when Feeble done her first jump she skidded and got down on the wet board and slid off into the water. She went home to get dry and we went to the pasture. After supper the folks were in the parlor and I asked my grandfather to show me how to play poker, so he got out a pack of cards and was dealing them, when my mother came to the dining room door and said, "Why, Father!" and he jumped up and got red, and grabbed the cards and went out doors, and my mother told me to go to bed. She said, "You children sure do keep me guessing!"

Love's Reawakening

The Story of a Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

By ADKLE GARRISON

Feminine Psychology

DICKY started at my tremulous exclamation, then looked down at me with a quizzical smile. "What's on the troubled mind?" he asked. Then his eyes went out again to the graceful posturing figures of Mary and Colin Cameron. But they came back to my face almost immediately.

"Of course she loves it," he said. "Do you know any normal girl of her age who wouldn't thrill at being chosen by a young talkie star for an intricate dance like that? Mary is pretty insulated I grant you, by her yen for Noel, but she isn't fool proof. I don't mean she's in any danger of falling for the personality of the man, but—"

Veritzen's sinister scheme

"That's just it," I interrupted breathlessly. "It's the dancing of course, but look at her face!"

Dicky looked at Mary's rapt face and brilliant eyes and his voice sobered.

"I see what you mean," he said. "She looks exactly as if she'd had a drink too much or a small shot of dope."

"Then look at Mr. Veritzen," I whispered.

"How much will you pay me for that job?" he retorted with a grin so infectious that, despite my anxiety for Mary, I could not help smiling widely at him.

"I'll figure it out later," I told him. "But tell me what you see."

My employer was so absorbed in watching Mary and young Mr. Cameron that he did not see the questioning stare Dicky gave him.

"The gorking, glowing old goat!" my husband said in an undertone. "I put the 'old' in for truth and to break up 'alterations' artificial and which I believe isn't approved by our best professors of English. But those are the only words to describe him. He's tickled pink over that dance—as pleased as if he'd planned the whole thing."

"He has," I whispered tensely. "Don't you see what his plan is? I know he had something in his mind when he brought Colin Cameron to that dinner the other night, but I thought he had the cynical idea that Mary would be swept off her feet by young Cameron's personality and the glamour investing him."

"You mean he hoped Mary'd give Noel the run-around, with exit on the fire escape?" Dicky said with such rallery in his voice for what he evidently considered my pedantic phrasing that I flushed and stammered. I was a bit resentful, too. After all, I said to myself, Mary was Dicky's niece not mine. If he could take her danger—could use no lesser word—so lightly, why should I worry about it?

I was abashed by own my pettiness the next instant. I knew that I would have been concerned over any girl in Mary's situation, knew also that my love for her was as strong and abiding as if she were indeed my own "blood kin," as my mother-in-law expresses it.

"Say it any way you like." With effort I purged my voice of resentment. "But I can see now that he had a subtler plan than that. He has studied her reactions."

"I've understood he's quite an expert on feminine psychology," my husband said dryly.

"And knows that she is obsessed by a love for dancing," I went on swiftly, ignoring the little rapier thrust.

Madge, Dicky's Aunt Developments

"Also a more or less suppressed liking for the limelight," he said. "We've got to face that with Mary. She's no more to blame for it than she is for the color of her eyes. It's part of the theatrical temperament, and she has that with three pluses."

"I know," I said a bit dearily. "But I thought that time—the masked dancer—you know—Jack Leale—" my voice trailed off as I choked on the remembrance of that terrible experience.

"They're never cured," he said sententiously. "Now, don't let the heckles bristle," as I threw up my head resentfully. "I don't mean that Mary's going to stage any time surreptitious as she did the last time or get herself into any disreputable scrape. She's had her lesson with that narrow escape. But it doesn't need a professor of psychology to see Phil's little

CARDS CONFIDENT OF BEATING A'S

WILD BILL HALLAHAN TO HURL THIRD GAME

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
NOW that the first two games of the world's series are over and the Athletics are holding a two game lead on the challenging St. Louis Cardinals it begins to look as though the Cards are not the ball club that the Athletics are. Whereas before the series opened, betting money flowed freely to the Cards would at least give the A's a hard battle it is now demanding odds of three to one to bet anything at all on St. Louis. Even at three to one odds there are few takers.

Of course it is possible, mathematically speaking, for the Cards to come through and upset the Athletics even though the latter has a two game lead at present. The fact remains, however, that only once in the history of the classic has the team that had a two game lead in the first two starts been defeated in the series. If the Cards lose one more the Athletics regulars may as well go home and leave the second stringers and the bat boys to win the deciding game.

Tonight Harding High's Presidents will battle the Elyria High school heavyweights in the first nocturnal battle for the locals. What the final outcome of the game will be no one knows just at present, however, it looks very much like the locals are in much the same predicament as the Cardinals. They have a tough team to beat and they do not look to have the strength to beat it. Harding may win but if they do it will come a distinct yet pleasant surprise to those followers of Harding football.

Although it is claimed that the artificial lighting does not bother the players it is likely that Harding will not be helped by the fact that it is unused to competing under the muzzas.

Another weekend is here and again but one N. C. O. grid contest is scheduled to go by the boards. Bucyrus and Mansfield tangle Saturday afternoon on the Bucyrus field with Mansfield the favorite to defeat the Bucyrus outfit. Who wins the game is not particularly significant. The important thing about the Saturday schedule is that these two are the only teams competing with league opponents. Gallon is entertaining Mt. Pleasant and if the latter is not beaten by 40 points then Gallon will be looking. Shelby and Ashland should both win but not by such a large score.

All of which brings to mind again that Harding has a schedule as much tougher than the remaining N. C. O. schools that it comes to be a joke. While other league teams are playing warm-up games for the first part of the year, Harding is going ahead battling schools clear out of its class. If Harding wins a championship on such a schedule as it has this year it will be because it has by far the best team in the league.

BY BRIAN BELL

ENROUTE FROM PHILADELPHIA TO ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3—Confident that a chance in environment will help them, the St. Louis Cardinals speeded westward today to resume their world's series quarrel with the Philadelphia Athletics at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, tomorrow.

The Athletics transformed by the schedule from the home club to the visitors, also went west today, but the American league can do no better in the National league city than they did at home.

The world's champions made it so in a row at Shibe park by giving big George Earnshaw an early lead, six runs in four innings. The only Cardinal run was a long home run over the right field wall by George Watkins, who plays right field for the Cards when the opposition sends in a righthander to pitch.

Although they never were "in the ball game" in the second contest of the series, the National leaguers showed no disposition to give up the baseball ghost and their supporters did not hesitate to say that once at their own homes and firesides they would give a good account of themselves.

Mack Hurlers Win

In the first two games Manager Connie Mack led his two aces and each took tricks. Bob Grove's victory in the opener was followed by an even more impressive pitching performance by his colleague in the second.

Running true to his schedule mapped out in advance, Manager Gabby Street sent Flint Rhem in to pitch the second game. The ind with the big curve was forced into retirement in the fourth inning after he had been nicked for six runs.

Jim Lindsey and Sylvester Johnson, two big right-handed pitchers, perfectly filled relief roles, neither permitting the A's a safe hit.

American league players say that when Earnshaw has control he is practically unbeatable. There was nothing wrong with his control in the second game of the series.

Hallahan To Start

As the contesting teams devoted a day to travel, speculation was rife as to the probable pitchers for the opening game at St. Louis tomorrow. Manager Street said he would summon his star southpaw, "Wildbill" Hallahan. Hallahan is another pitcher who is almost unbeatable when his control is working.

Connie Mack, as usual, kept his own counsel. There were numerous suggestions that he would give Grove and Earnshaw each a chance to repeat. Should he consider this course impracticable, the names mentioned frequently in connection with the pitching assignment for tomorrow were Bill Shore, a youngster, and Eddie Rommel, a veteran.

The second game of the series brought a new record when Frankie Frisch, in his first time at bat, drove a double to left field. This was Frisch's 43rd hit in six world's series, passing the mark of Eddie Collins, made in six series, the last in 1919.

Mack Warns Players

Cautious Connie today warned his players that the series was not yet over and that the most important question before the house of Mack was winning two more games.

Gubby Street exhorted the Cardinals to "snap out of it" and get the games back. He reminded them that in 1917 the New York Giants lost the first two games to the Chicago White Sox and then came back to square the series with two shutouts. Sergeant Street said he would not insist on the shutouts. However, the Giants finally lost the series.

Only once in world's series history has a team lost the series after winning the first two games and that was in a series scheduled for nine games, or less. In 1921 the New York Yankees won the first two games from the Giants, holding the National leaguers runnerless, and then lost the series, five games to three.

WITH Dick Morgan, first string quarterback, slated for a sideline post tonight because of an ailing leg and several other of the regulars in rather poor physical condition for a tough battle, Harding High school apparently is destined to be soundly trounced tonight by a highly touted Elyria team. for the locals under the incandescents, a fact that does not point to aid particularly in the Marion team's battle.

Considering all factors in the light of past performances it does not look like the chief problem of Harding will be to win the game. Harding's biggest task will probably be in crossing the goal line of the home team. As for the scoring of Elyria—the updaters

NEW ASSIST RECORD SET BY CARDINALS

Previous Mark of Five Lowered One by St. Louis; A's Tie Record.

By The Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3—Baseball record books today revealed that the world's series contenders shared an extraordinary fielding feat in the second game, the St. Louis Cardinals, by making only four assists, broke the world's series record for the fewest number of assists in a single game, and the Philadelphia Athletics with only five, tied the previous mark.

The Cardinals actually should have gone through the game with only three assists, for one of the four was due to a dropped third strike that forced Mancuso to make a throw to first base for a putout. Adams, Frisch and Gelbert had the other assists.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 3—Headlined by the Wittenberg-John Carroll and the Ohio university-Butler games, five football affairs tonight usher in a week-end which will see 35 of Ohio's 28 college teams in action.

Coach Peden's Bobcats have a big job in Butler's Bulldogs and will have a merry time keeping their streak of 12 victories intact. If the Bobcats win tonight in Indianapolis, they stand an excellent chance of going through the season undefeated until their final game with Ohio Wesleyan.

Pitt vs. West Virginia May Be Good; Other Teams In Setups.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Yale's eleven will play Maryland at New Haven tomorrow with high hopes of bettering the 1920 result which resulted in a 13-13 tie. At Morgantown two ancient and evenly matched rivals, Pitt and West Virginia will clash with the result a toss-up.

Almost all the other eastern games are tune-up contests with hardly an element of competition involved.

Harvard, Princeton, Penn and Navy all will be making their season's debut. Harvard has arranged a double-header with Vermont and the U. S. Coast Guard academy as opponents. Princeton probably will need all its resources to turn back Amherst's strong array which held the Tigers to a 7-0 count a year ago. Penn should trample Swarthmore without trouble but William and Mary probably will give the Navy a good workout.

Army's second rival will be Furman university of Greenville, S. C.

Cubs, Sox Resume Play with One Victory Each

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Oct. 3—The Cubs and White Sox today moved over to the north side of Chicago to resume their city championship struggle with the count at one-all each.

After dropping the first game of the series, the Cubs bounced back yesterday and evened things up with a 4 to 2 decision.

Sheriff Fred Blake permitted only five hits, two of them in the ninth, young Pat Caraway, his opponent, did well until the eighth inning when he was cracked for singles by Blair and English which were followed by a line drive home run by Kiki Cuyler.

Red Faber was assigned to pitch for the White Sox, and either Guy Bush or young Bud Teachout, was to do it for William Wrigley's club.

Sidelights World's Series

BY BILL CORUM
International News Service Writer

EN ROUTE TO ST. LOUIS
3—And I bet the boys that the Cardinals would win world series hope I jump Mississippi when I get to it. I might at that if it isn't raining, providing you didn't mud.

It does look a wee mite too our side right now, doesn't it? you can never tell. It looked for Washington at Valley View. Still, only once in the history of the world's series play has a come back after two defeats to the championship. Which is why the boys were laying 1 against the Cards when we out of Philadelphia last evening. This is the sports writers'—18 hours from Philly to St. or your money back.

The boys are saying that over but for mister Connie to pick up the china again the second year in succession. I dunno. Being a bitter old want to see the last two reds how. The white elephants stood off the same way against the in Chicago last year, and went on to win the series five. And they say an elephant never forgets. But they don't, an elephant never stumbles. Mack's thundering herd may do it, but they are at least a stub their collective toes.

It doesn't seem possible that Cardinals can continue as they were yesterday. Not and living, that is. In the first they had some excuse. All the yesterday was the litters.

For this showing I blame it.

Argentine Lightweight Favored To Beat Miller

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Oct. 3--A ten-round bout between Justo Suarez, Argentine sensation, and Ray Miller, Chicago lightweight, tops the opening indoor card at Madison Square garden tonight.
Suarez, perhaps because of a decided advantage in the weights, rules a favorite at odds as high as 2 to 1. Miller, on the basis of his record, looks like a much better bet than the odds would indicate. Suarez has been undefeated in this country, beating among others Bruce Flowers, Joe Gillick and Herman Pellick, but Miller looks like a more formidable foe than any of these.

AGOSTA-STARS TO PLAY

The second game of the three game championship series of the Tri-county baseball league between Agosta and Oakland Stars will be played on the Agosta diamond Sunday. Oakland Stars won the first game, a 10 inning battle, 7 to 6.

Sidelights on World's Series

Gabby Street, better known to his ballplayers and the St. Louis fans as "the off sergeant." Gabby might have won the ball game. And the worst he could have done was keep his team in it, if he hadn't been stubborn about Flint Rhem in the second inning.

If you think this is second guessing there is a score card here on the desk with a line drawn out from Rhem's strike out in that frame and the notation-bad baseball. You also find a play-by-play description of the game which reads: "Street surprisingly let Rhem bat. . . Flint rewarded this misplaced confidence by striking out."

The first sentence was of course dictated before the kidnap kid had whiffed so ingloriously. I am not trying to set up as grandstand manager, but that was the same sort of ball Joe engineered against the A's a year ago--saw a lot ball. It took no keen baseball knowledge to see in the first inning that all Rhem had was his glove and his press notices. Cochrane combed him for an excursion tour to start the ball flying and Simmons and Fox followed with rousing base hits to make the count 2-0.

Watkins Gets Homer

Then in the second, after Watkins had clipped Earnshaw a four-bagger Mancuso and Gelbert had singled in succession, what did Street do but let "Flint rock and rye" go on up there and strike out for himself. Mack must have got a good chuckle out of that, because it not only put the chill on a rally, it also left Rhem in there for the A's to play with.

While we are on the subject of Flint I think I know who kidnaped him. It must have been somebody from Philadelphia since the Athletics knew all his secrets. Maybe it was "boo boo" Hoff. Rhem came back crying, didn't he?

To make sure nobody takes this seriously permit me to point out that I'm only kidding. And so was Rhem against the A's. The South Carolina tobacco farmer couldn't even take orders from the bench gracefully and kicked strenuously when Street ordered him to pass Fox with two on base, after Rhem himself had got in the hole with him.

It was poor generalship and poor pitching, and then, to heap coals of fire on his own head, Street put in two relief pitchers off whom the Athletics couldn't raise the sign of a base blow in four and two-thirds innings.

This, then, puts it squarely up to William Hallahan, a wee mite of a dish faced fellow, to save the Red Wings from clipping and the National league from added disgrace.

Anyone who wishes for fame is never content to wait for it; and that's about as it should be.

And sometimes the things a woman does are the effect without the cause.

PARIS EXPERIENCES UNUSUAL SUMMER

Rain and Cold Prevalent
Throughout Entire Season
of 1936.

PARIS—The rainfall in Paris for the month of July was the worst that had been seen in fifty-five years, with twenty-two stormy days, whereas twelve usually make a good record. And not only was it very rainy, but very cold, and gave every one of the oldest inhabitants plenty of material for conversation.

A large share of the blame was put upon the Gulf Stream, but Henry Memory of the Talence Observatory, in the Gironde, took exception to this popular theory. He believes the winds changed en route, causing all the bad weather. "Due to the general atmospheric circulation from East to West, on the Northern Hemisphere," says Monsieur Memory, "depressions formed over the Atlantic take the same general direction as the gulf stream, within the limits of which they form ordinarily. They reach Europe from the west or north-west bringing in winter temperatures higher than in the interior of the continent and in summer lower temperatures. It is the latter case which has produced the cool, unsettled weather during this summer."

Mr. Memory also expresses the popular opinion that waves of cold or heat in the United States wind up finally in Europe. If those waves did cross, he insists, they would take the surface temperature which is mild in winter and fresh in summer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—Playing on a railroad track, 5-year-old Herbert Brandt, failed to notice a train rushing toward him here yesterday. The engineer jammed on the brakes but the train passed over the boy. Trainmen ran back and found Herbert sitting up, laughing and barely scratched. "I saw the wheels go around," he said.

NEED ROUGHAGE

DIETS THAT do not include roughage cause constipation, often with serious consequences.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains the roughage needed to insure regular elimination. Now new processes have made this famous cereal even more delightful—improved both in texture and in taste.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation! Two tablespoons daily—in serious cases, with each meal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is not fattening. It adds valuable iron to the blood, which helps prevent dietary anemia and brings color to the complexion. Try the recipe on the package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

LEADER OF CHURCH TOURS U. S. CITIES

Rev. Stanislaus Gillet To Inspect Local Branches of Organization.

By International News Service
NEW YORK—The Most Rev. Stanislaus Gillet, master general of the Order of Preachers (Dominican Fathers) and seventy-eighth successor to St. Dominic as head of the Order founded in 1215, arrived here recently for a tour of the houses of the Order in this country. The Dominican Fathers have churches in practically every large city in the United States and conduct a number of educational institutions for the higher education of Catholic men as well as preach at missions and retreats for the Catholic people. The Dominican Fathers first labored on the American shores in the sixteenth century when they preached to the Indians and the Spanish settlers along the southern coast of California, but it was not until 1895 that the first province of the Order was established in this country under the direction of Rev. Dominic Fenwick, a native of Maryland, who opened the first novitiate of the Order at Springfield, Ky. The earlier preachers were credited to the Spanish province of the Order.

Father Gillet, a noted preacher throughout his native France was elected master general at the international chapter of the Order of Preachers held in Rome August of last year. He served in the chaplain corps of the French Army during the World war.

VALUABLE METAL IS FOUND BY SCIENCE

More Expensive Than Gold. To Be Used Extensively.

By International News Service
PITTSBURGH — Worth more than twice its weight in gold, a new substance, Firwhite, made its debut in the industrial world here. Properly manufactured only in small quantities through a long and intricate laboratory process, the new substance will now be produced in large quantities in the plant of the Fifth-Sterling Steel Company.
The new substance cannot properly be called a metal. It is a cobalt-chromium product with the appearance of high speed steel. The substance is second only to diamonds in hardness.
Firwhite will retail for approximately $100,000 a ton. Pure gold buttons can be bought for a little less than $500,000 a ton and steel for $25.
The reason for the high price of Firwhite is the intricate refining process of more than 60 hours which is necessary for its manufacture. The process also results in about a 40 per cent loss of the three materials used in the process.
The new substance will be used chiefly for boring, milling, and turning. Because of its high value it will be used only on the tips of tools.
The first big scale user of the new substance is the automobile industry.

Bugs Baer Is Featured Star in "Radio Follies"

BUGS BAER, humorist and veteran newspaperman, and a scene from "The Second Little Show" are the highlights of the program of the second "Radio Follies" to be broadcast over WABC and the Columbia network Friday at 10 p. m.

From "The Second Little Show," one of Broadway's smartest shows, the "Radio Follies" will present one of the hit acts, played by the original cast. Bugs Baer will dispense, as his part of the broadcast, some original "wise-cracks" for which he is famous.

During the remainder of the presentation radio listeners will hear the Follies' Orchestra assisted by its male trio and soloist; a fast moving review of the latest musical hits, and the suave voice of Norman Brokenshire, the Radio Follies' master of ceremonies.

A medley of Vincent Youmans' hits, including selections from several of his older musical shows, will be heard during the broadcast of the Ramblers Trio over stations associated with the NBC Friday at 6:30 p. m.

Another quarter-hour of laughs is in store for radio listeners. Friday from 7:45 to 8 p. m. when Phil Baker and Shaw & Lee, star comedians of musical comedy, vaudeville and the "movies," put on the
